

TECHNICAL ADVISOR - COMMUNITY FOREST PROGRAM – Cambodia

Concern, one of the leading organizations in Cambodia involved in Community Forestry (CF) seeks an individual for 1 year to work with the field programs in 3 provinces, explicitly to build capacity of field staff and partners (local NGOs and Provincial Forest Office and Environment Department staff) in developing and implementing innovative models and approaches.

Requirements: degree in Forestry or related discipline; 2 years practical experience with community based natural resource management (CBNRM) in a tropical country resulting in a strong grasp of CBNRM concepts and methods and demonstrable field skills; experience working directly with communities and training; confidence to adapt, innovate and think analytically; excellent communication and team building skills; commitment to engaging staff in active learning and development rather than transferring skills; proficient in written and spoken English; willingness to learn Khmer; and computer literate. Further qualification in development related subject; e.g.: community development; staff and program management experience; understanding of institutional change and reform processes; and work experience in South or South East Asia is preferred.

Interested candidates should submit curriculum vitae and cover letter to:
